GVERNOR HAS NOTHING TO SAY ON SENATORSHIP

Informed of the candidacy of Lieut. Governor Thomas Morris for the 1924 nomination for United States senator, Governor Francis E. McGovern declined to state whether or not he would be a candidate for the same nomination. He refused to state whether or not he would be a candidate for any office at the next state election.

Lieut. Governor Morris today announced his candidacy for the United States senate, a State Journal reporter informed the executive. "Will you be a candidate for the same office?"

"Oh, I've nothing to say," said the governor.

"Will you have something later, governor?"

"Well, Oh, all I have to say is that I've nothing to say," was the laughing reply.

LA FOLLETTE HAS NEW STRINGENT ANTI-TRUST ACT

Introduces Measure Amending Sherman Law Definition of Reasonable Restraint

NINE TYPES OF COMBINES NAMED

Any Concern Controlling More Than 30 Per Cent of Product Would Be Barred

Washington, June 14.—Amendments to the Sherman anti-trust law are contemplated in a bill introduced by Senator La Follette today.

This bill represents a year of careful study of the whole question. The bill defines nine classes of combination that, regardless of their extent, are to be held as unreasonable.

Combinations of this character are those which prevent the purchase of a product from others than the manufacturer, discriminate in prices as between purchasers; refuse to sell to any would-be purchaser; seek to increase their business by offering better terms in one territory than in another; contract for a division of territory; promote business under an assumed name; or divulge in any way the controlling elements behind it; artificially stimulate sales at the expense of competitors by selling below cost of production; bribe officials of competitors or officers of the United States; control the raw material necessary to the manufacture of an article and seek to prevent competitors from obtaining materials by holding them at an unreasonable price.

Under this proposed law any concern controlling more than 30 per cent of any business in the United States in any article would be barred from claiming reasonable restraint.

"WHY AND WHEN I LIKE TO WEAR TROUSERS"

By BILLIE BURKE

I almost wish that Paul Poirot had been able to make the bifurcated skirt of his fashion. For since wearing boy's clothes in "The Amazons" I find that no woman can understand how we are hampered by skirts until she wears trousers. I have decided to wear regular riding some one has killed the meat which I eat, but, like many other things, I don't think about it when eating a bird or a fillet mignon. I don't, however, wear those wonderful plumage things which mean the wanton torture of the birds, and I think any woman who does so shows herself wanting in feminine sympathy for those that are weaker than herself.

But, to get back to mannish dress, I really wish it were possible for women to wear it, at least when they are in the country, where they need to have their limbs unhampered. I have never been able to understand the conventional idea which I believe originated at the Court of Spain with the saying, "The Queen of Spain has no legs." Ever since that time women have been politely supposed to be built like out of those funny little Noah's wives the children put in their toy ark all in one block.

If you are going to take your vacation in the mountains or anywhere as far away from the maddening crowd this summer I am going to advise you to do a very unconventional thing. Have a khaki suit made with knickerbockers and a long Norfolk jacket which comes to the knee and is met with leather leggings or high shoes. Use this for your pajamas, for tennis, for rowing and fishing and use what a good time you will have and how much you will be rested when you come back to conventional dress and society.

No, I don't think I am advocating a Dr. Mary Walker kind of costume for every-day wear. I am too fond of the dainty little frivolities with which we women love to deck ourselves, but I think when one goes on a vacation and is in a place where one would not be so noticeable a suit of clothes that I have suggested would be quite as sensible and appropriate as a bathing suit at the seashore.

PRESIDENT WEARS WHITE DUCK PANTS

Washington, June 14.—President Wilson set a new golfing style today when he appeared in immaculate white duck pants. The president felt the lure of the links as soon as he looked out and saw a clear sun day and by 9:30 he was off for the Chevy Chase club for his first tryout on that course.

brooches and the long coat in England this summer. Instead of the conventional riding skirt when I go hunting. Ever since I was a little girl I have ridden to hounds, and I have never been in at the death, but I have never done so without a rather sick feeling coming over me. It seems such cruel sport for a lot of men, women, horses and dogs to get themselves up to kill one poor little fox. In fact, I do not believe in killing anything. I almost hate to "swat the fly." By normal rights I should be a vegetarian, because I know that
