Shelly,

The phase one PFAS issues have been addressed and determine we could not require PFAS testing of sediment. If sediment samples are found at a later date that contain PFAS in sediment, then county would be responsible for remediation of this dredge material according to RR program. PFAS was not required with the carriage return water permit that was issued by Waste Water Program for phase 1.

Thanks, my calendar is up to date when you want to schedule the skype.

Hi Mike,

Yes I should have been clear on my message, sorry about that. I'm particularly interested in the status for Phase 1 and if things are ready for construction to begin (i.e. PFAS concerns under control?).

However, we also need to plan for future phases. I'd like to arrange a meeting with us and the County to talk about Phases 1-3, before that we'll all need to know where we are with things internally.

I think what I'll do is set up a skype meeting for us, hopefully that would help all of us understand where we are with things. We'll also want to ensure our messaging is consistent.

Shelly

Are you just referencing phase 1 or the permitting or phases 2 and 3? I know that Jim Amrhein and Dan Oele have looked at Phase 2 and 3 locations for potential resource concerns regarding critical habitat and sensitive areas for mussels and fish habitat.

thanks

Hi Everyone,

Hope you are all doing well and feeling adjusted to our new work environment. I know my dog is loving us being home all day, I'm sure some of you are in the same boat! 🐶

I'm reaching out to learn from you where things are at for your program on the Dane County Yahara dredging permit. Some of you will recall I was involved with this project when it kicked off a couple of years ago, but I could use an update so that I can reach out to the County. I had briefly talked to John Reimer the week covid started to try and set up a meeting, obviously that got put on hold.

Thank you for your updates!
